PREPARE FOR EXTREME WEATHER EVENTS

As the state experiences an unprecedented heatwave, with strong winds, bushfires, smoke and dust storms, Queenslanders are being urged to take steps to keep themselves safe and healthy.

In Australia, heatwaves claim more lives than any other natural hazard and the Heart Foundation is urging Queenslanders with heart conditions to take extra care in the heat.

HEATWAVE HEALTH TIPS:

Look after yourself and keep in touch with others

Drink plenty of water without waiting for thirst (if your doctor normally limits your fluids, check how much to drink during hot weather)

Keep cool – stay indoors or in an air-conditioned environment

Reduce normal activity levels or pick a cooler time of day to be active

As extreme weather events sweep the state, Queenslanders are advised to be prepared, pay attention to their health, and look out for neighbours and loved ones.

Last week saw record-breaking heatwave conditions across the state combined with catastrophic fire dangers for eastern Queensland.

Bureau of Meteorology State Manager for Queensland, Bruce Gunn, said the severity of these conditions is reflected both in the number of records broken and number of fires, many of which are still burning.

"Daytime temperatures are expected to peak around 8-10 degrees above average in the southeast on Sunday [December 2] where Severe heatwave conditions may develop in heavily populated parts in the southeast, posing a health risk to the vulnerable in the community," he said.

While the heatwave grips large parts of the state, fires are burning in the central regions, dust is covering in the south-east, very high winds with hot and dry air Queensland Health has activated the State-wide Heatwave Response Plan.

The heat is actually the highest concern with Queensland Acting Chief Health Officer Dr Sonya Bennett is urging people to take precautions against dehydration and other heat-related conditions.

"Anybody can be at risk of heat-related illness but infants, the elderly, pregnant and breastfeeding women, and people with some pre-existing medical conditions are particularly vulnerable," she said.

"Be alert to the symptoms of heat-related illnesses which can range from heat rash, muscle cramps, and heavy sweating, to paleness, dizziness, nausea, vomiting and fainting.

"Drink plenty of fluids, preferably cool water, regularly throughout the day – don't wait until you're thirsty.

"Stay indoors when possible, preferably in a building with air-conditioning or good air flow, and limit strenuous outdoor activity.

"Stay cool by taking cool showers, soaking feet in water or wearing a wet bandana or washer around your neck.

"Always check the colour of your urine to ensure you are well-hydrated – it should be clear to light straw-coloured, not dark or gold."

Queensland Ambulance Service has experienced unprecedented workloads in the last week, primarily due to heat and fire.

WHILE THE HEATWAVE GRIPS LARGE PARTS OF THE STATE, FIRES ARE BURNING IN THE CENTRAL REGIONS, DUST IS COVERING IN THE SOUTH-EAST, VERY HIGH WINDS WITH HOT AND DRY AIR THE HEAT IS ACTUALLY THE HIGHEST CONCERN

On Monday 26 November, QAS Emergency Medical Dispatchers took 2664 Triple Zero (000) calls and paramedics attended 3567 incidents – an additional 336 incidents compared to the same day last year.

QAS Clinical Director Tony Hucker said it was also concerning to see paramedics attended 25 heat-related cases on Monday.

"With the current extreme fire danger in place, we want to reassure Queenslanders that we are here in your time of need," Clinical Director Hucker said.

Clinical Director Hucker said it's important people are aware of the signs and symptoms associated with heat-related illnesses.

"Look out for headaches, nausea, cramps, fainting, excessive sweating, tiredness and dizziness," he said.

"If you suspect someone may be suffering from heat-related illness, call Triple Zero (000) immediately, lay the person down in a cool spot, remove as much clothing as possible and give the person water to drink if they are able to swallow.

"If possible, get them into a cold shower or bath, or cover them with a wet sheet to help cool them down."

Dr Bennett also urged people to avoid touching bats that may be impacted by the heat.

"I'd urge people to be extra careful and avoid touching or picking up bats," she said.

"We know bats are being impacted by the heat. If you see a bat on the ground, don't touch it even if you think it's dead. Instead, contact your local RSPCA or wildlife organisation who have people trained to handle bats."

With dust and smoke covering parts of the state, Dr Bennett said people with respiratory issues should stay indoors with windows and doors closed, and avoid vigorous exercise.

Thunderstorm asthma is a potent mix of pollen and weather conditions that can trigger severe asthma symptoms in a large number of people over a short period of time.

Weather conditions like these can also lead to breathing problems being experienced not only by people with asthma but those who have seasonal hay fever. People who wheeze and sneeze with hay fever from pollens during spring are most likely to be affected, even if they have not been diagnosed with asthma before Thunderstorm asthma may occur when a storm strikes on a hot and windy day during pollen season (early October - late December), when there are high levels of pollen in the air combined with a certain type of weather event.

"If you are experiencing any adverse reactions to the dust, such as shortness of breath, prolonged coughing or wheezing, seek medical advice," she said.

While there are some early indications that temperatures in Queensland may return to closer to average by Thursday of this week, you can keep an eye on heatwave here www.bom.gov.au/australia/heatwave/

BLUE-GREEN ALGAE BLOOM IN REDCLIFFE

Peninsular beach-goers are advised that a Trichodesmium bloom (also known as blue-green algae) has been identified along Redcliffe Peninsula at Scarborough extending past Queens Beach towards Redcliffe.

The algae is generally thought to be non-toxic, but may trigger localised effects such as skin irritation and rashes in some people and as a precaution, Council recommends that people avoid contact with the bloom until it has cleared.

The algae presents with an oily surface, strong rotting smell and discolouration but should clear quickly.

Council continues to monitor conditions in the affected area and throughout the region for algal blooms.

For more information or to report a Trichodesmium sighting, please contact council on (07) 3205 0555.

CHOPPERS TACKLE MOZZIES IN MORETON BAY

Last week, Council conducted aerial mosquito treatment targeting saltmarsh areas in Deception Bay, Burpengary East, Uhlmann Road, Beachmere, Ningi, Toorbul, Elimbah and Bribie Island.

The treatment targets mosquito larvae before they have the chance to emerge, and forms part of council's ongoing program to treat mosquitoes in public places like parks, sports facilities and local reserves across the region.

As mosquitos can fly up to 10km from saltmarsh areas it is important to target them where they breed to stop their spread across the region.

Council is urging residents to also manage mosquito numbers in the region by taking a few simple steps in and around the home, where most mozzies breed. Take five minutes to empty any containers that might have rainwater and change the water in your pet's bowl, and make sure your swimming pool remains chlorinated.

People are also encouraged to apply mosquito repellent when heading outdoors, especially at dawn and dusk.

COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS (A CHRISTMAS DAY EVENT)

Last year, The Lakes Anglican Church launched an event to bring together community members who find themselves alone on Christmas Day. It was a small event but attendees described the event as blessing.

This year, the church is looking to include more people who find themselves without company or are short on dollars and those who want to help.

For this year's event the church seeks donations of gift basket goods and BBQ style food (meats/ salads/ drinks) and is looking to rent or buy games to entertain on the day such as board games or inflatable games from party hire and encourages members of the community to come out and interact on the day.

There's more information at www.facebook.com/events/2202792296457794/ or call 07 3482 4493 to donate.

The Lakes Anglican will host it's community Christmas Day event on December 25 from 5pm at The Space at North Lakes.

To support the event with donations contact Rev'd Dan Berris via dan@thelakesanglican.org.au or 0403977512. Embrace Life (07) 3491 6533 are also collecting donations.

IN PICTURES: NORTH LAKES CHRISTMAS CAROLS 2018

Locally, Christmas time is always the most wonderful time of the year. We've got many long running traditions. There's the annual North Lakes Santa Run (see Messenger November 10, 2018, available online), there's the Messenger's own Christmas Colouring competition (currently running, see page 24-25, this edition) then there's the annual North Lakes Christmas Carols.

The long running family favourite was held last Saturday at Kinsellas Park and featured a long list of free activities, a stellar program of entertainment, roving performers, Christmas Carols, a human sized snowglobe and even a visit from Santa himself.

Locals dusted off their picnic blankets and tinsels before heading along to enjoy one of the calendar's most anticipated events.

Highlights were a fabulous performance by Steps Dance Centre on the Village Motors Main Stage early during the day and Sesame Lane's Santa's Village hosting a range of free Christmas activities including letters to Santa, jumping castle, face painting, craft activities and more.

The evening finished with a huge fireworks spectacular.

CRAFT BEER BREWERS HAVE REASON TO CHEER

The future of Queensland's craft brewers is looking bright with the launch of Australia's first craft brewing strategy to support the industry's rapid expansion.

In an Australian first, the state government has acknowledged the benefits local independent craft brewing industry holds for the state's economy and local communities.

Currently, craft beer production in Queensland contributes significantly to the state's economy, creating jobs, attracting private sector investment and facilitating innovation. The industry is estimated to be worth upwards of $62 million per year.

The drafted strategy will focus on three key areas - improving access to markets, ensuring appropriate regulation and planning is in place to facilitate a supportive environment and investing in people and infrastructure, helping the industry to grow in meaningful ways.

Brisbane independent craft brewer Ballistic Beer Co is optimistic about the industry's future in Queensland with founder David Kitchen saying Queensland brewers are sweeping up national awards and gaining recognition for their beers.

"We believe there is huge potential for our independent craft breweries to create jobs and be positive players within our local areas and regions, creating vibrant, community hubs. The Government's assistance can help us realise that potential.

"The strategy focuses on three key areas including investing in people and infrastructure, improving access to markets, and ensuring appropriate regulation and planning is in place to facilitate a supportive environment.

"With the release of the Queensland Craft Brewing Strategy, the Queensland Government has taken the first steps to supporting an industry that is generating jobs and growth within the state, opening up tourism opportunities and growing exports.

"The streamlining of licensing and planning processes will greatly assist the growth of the industry when implemented."

There are around 90 independent craft brewers across the state. Many Queensland brewers are winning awards for their produce, like local outfit White Brick Brewing, which won three medals at the Australian International Beer earlier in the year and four medals at the Independent Beer Awards shortly after.

NORTHS SALVATION ARMY CHRISTMAS APPEAL

In the spirit of the season, Norths is bringing the community together to support those in need.

Christmas can be a time of joy, a time to celebrate love for one another, and a time of sharing gifts. Christmas is a happy time for most but spare a thought for those families who won't have the happiness and joy of opening presents this year. For some, it can be a time of loneliness and sadness.

The good people over at North Leagues Club have been running the Norths Salvation Army Christmas appeal for over ten years and during that time hundreds of toys have been donated to disadvantaged children. This year the club encourages members of community to continue the generous tradition of giving to this worthwhile cause.

Norths is now inviting the community to place new toys under the Christmas tree located at the entrance of the club. The toys will be collected by the Pine Rivers Salvation Army and distributed to disadvantaged children in the community.

Your donations are enormously appreciated - because they really do give hope where it's needed most.

For more information regarding the Christmas appeal, please call Norths on (07) 3285 2733, or email Norths at enquiries@northsleagues.com.

WE HAVEN'T BEEN INTIMATE FOR OVER EIGHT YEARS

Hi Leonie,

I'm thinking about leaving my husband and going to London to be with my daughter.

My husband and I have grown apart and do nothing together. He works long hours, plays golf and watches sport. I work long hours, read and I help out at an animal shelter. We stopped eating together years ago as our hobbies and commitments always clashed, and we haven't been intimate for over eight years.

I am ready for an adventure and I'm fed up with the way we live our lives. In my wildest dreams I am travelling, eating at exotic places and meeting new people and trying new things. My dreams are to live life to the full before I get too old. I would like to learn to play tennis, to dance, live for a short time overseas and go about making myself a new life.

My husband is a perfectly good man, but he is boring and set in his ways. He has lots of good points and this is why I think that I have hung in there so long. We were married 19 years ago, and it seems as though at some point we came to a fork in the road and he went one way and I went the other.

I don't think that this is a midlife crisis as I have been feeling like this for years. I have not said anything to my husband about my feelings and I'm worried that if I call it quits and go, I will miss him and he won't let me come home.

I have spoken to my friends about this and they feel that I have too much to lose this late in life. Have you had clients in this position before? Advice please.

Lynda/ Clontarf

Hello Lynda,

Well Lynda, the first thing that comes to my mind is that I don't know how your poor husband is meant to make you happy when you haven't even bothered to tell him that you are unhappy. If he is not meeting your needs for companionship, intimacy and a stimulating life, don't you think he should be the first to know - not your friends?

How do you know that he is not feeling similarly to you and hasn't had the courage to say anything? Have you asked him about the intimacy and explored whether there are some drivers to his lack of passion such as impotency problems, lack of attraction to you or depression.

You have not said in your email whether you still love your husband as this makes a lot of difference to how things may play out.

Whenever a person leaves a relationship, they take a chance on whether they are doing the right thing. There are no guarantees that the partner they leave won't start dating, form new relationships or move to another state. There are no guarantees that they won't see it as a blessing because they believed in the concept of marriage and could not bring themselves to pull the pin but are glad that this decision has been taken out of their hands.

I have had clients in similar positions to you and I have always advised them to make sure that the relationship holds no hope before they leave. Often when a couple start communicating many things come to light that have been previously left sleeping. What if you could have this new exciting life full of travel and adventure with your husband? Would you still want to separate or are you really looking for an excuse to leave? If you told your husband what you need, and he told you what he needed to be happy, would you be willing to compromise?

Wild dreams are so called because they are usually unrealistic. How long do you think that you would be welcome in your daughter's home before tensions start to boil over and have you considered how you would support yourself before and after any property settlement?

I would strongly encourage you to get couples counselling to see if this relationship can be saved. If it can't, at least you both will be able to move on knowing that you both invested the time and energy to give the marriage a sporting chance.

Til next week, Leonie

SUN SAFETY WARNING AS SUMMER KICKS OFF

Summer didn't just arrive this year, it kicked in the door and scorching new figures show the sun safety message isn't sinking in, with half of all Queenslanders getting sunburnt every year.

The Health of Queenslanders 2018 report revealed that only one in two children and one in five adults used daily sun protection and that 54 per cent of adults and 46 per cent of children were sunburnt in the previous 12 months.

Cancer Council Queensland CEO Ms Chris McMillan said the start of summer in Queensland came with an important reminder about the importance of sun protection.

"Our state has the highest rate of skin cancer in the world, so it's crucial for Queenslanders to take sun protective measures when out and about, especially during summer," Ms McMillan said.

Around 3600 melanoma and 343,000 non-melanoma skin cancers are diagnosed across the Queensland each year.

Sun protection is required when the ultraviolet (UV) index is 3 and above, which is all year round in Queensland, and can even be from as early as 7.20am in summer.

"What many people don't realise is that skin damage can occur in as little as 10 to 15 minutes - even on cold or overcast days," Ms McMillan said.

"Getting sunburnt doesn't just occur during a full day at the beach either - people are often burnt unexpectedly at sports games, gardening at home or having a barbecue."

Federal Minister and Gold Coast MP Karen Andrews reiterated the importance of sun safety, after her husband was recently diagnosed with a stage two melanoma in his leg.

"It was so unexpected that my husband would have any sort of a skin cancer. He has six-monthly skin checks, so in the space of that time he had developed a stage two melanoma," Minister Andrews said.

"The message from my family to all families and individuals on the Gold Coast and in Queensland is be forever vigilant and see your general practitioner if you notice any changes.

"It's particularly important for us as we head into summer to reinforce the message that it's ultraviolet radiation that is the major cause of skin cancer. It doesn't need to be hot or sunny - UV can't be seen or felt."

Ms McMillan urged all Queenslanders to reduce their risk of skin cancer by following all five sun protective recommendations.

"We know from The Health of Queenslanders 2018 report that only 22 per cent of adults and 47 per cent of children wore a broad-brimmed hat, long sleeves and long pants or skirts and used SPF 30 or higher sunscreen for sun protection in summer," Ms McMillan said.

"Sunscreen on its own or a good hat alone isn't enough - we need to make the effort to do all we can to reduce our skin cancer risk.

"Slip on protective clothing, Slop on minimum SPF30 broad-spectrum, water-resistant sunscreen, Slap on a broad-brimmed hat, Seek shade and Slide on wrap-around sunglasses when out and about."

Cancer Council's SunSmart app allows people to track UV levels in real time, with advice on applying sunscreen and myth-busting information, and is available in app stores for free, or online via cancer.org.au/SunSmartApp.

More information about Cancer Council Queensland is available at cancerqld.org.au or Cancer Council's 13 11 20.

A WORRYING TREND FAIR GO FOR CASUAL WORKERS IN NORTH LAKES

Hi,

I am writing to share my disappointment at the behaviour of some of our retail businesses in the North Lakes, and I am sure wider, area. Employment Laws recently changed to give more rights to casual workers which sees the employees being entitled to receive Holiday / Sick Pay, in the way a permanent employee in certain circumstances would.

I am now aware of three businesses who have employed young adults in North Lakes based businesses. Within a very similar time period their employees, who are approaching six months service and of a similar age and employed as 'Casuals' have suddenly found they no longer get any shifts at these businesses. Shame on all of you!

These businesses, when pressed for an explanation as to why these young adults have stopped receiving shifts, have told these employees that their performance is not acceptable so they no longer work there. In each instance these employees have never had a complaint about their work prior. It all coincides with the changes in the law around Casual Workers.

Another concern is that Fair Work Australia will not pick up complaints from workers who have served less than 12 months in their job. These businesses are subsequently advertising for new staff to continue the trend and hurt more hard working young people.

I am disappointed with the behaviour of these businesses and I feel this needs to be brought to the communities attention because I am sure this is not isolated. I appreciate the law changes may impact the business but what they are failing to take account for / and consideration of is the following:

1. Effectively sacking an employee when they have done nothing wrong is disgusting. A lot of these employees are students - getting such poor feedback that is untrue can damage these kids given their age and limited experience. This can have a serious impact on their confidence in the work place and when interviewing for jobs.
2. Making up reasons for ceasing their employment is a very low act and, if witnessed by an authority would see them fined.
3. By continuing to operate with such a policy (sack the current and cycle new staff through every 6 months) will equal a poor customer experience because you are dealing continually with new people who are continually learning. Customers will chose to take their business elsewhere if these people keep applying this approach. And then they go bust and wonder why.
4. These young adults are trying to make money whilst in full time education and now I am seeing a merry-go-round of people needlessly having to find new jobs every 6 months.

I work in a leadership role and I pride myself on building a strong culture in my teams which includes sharing good and bad feedback so we can improve. As a result we deliver a great customer experience and the staff are loyal. A much more cost effective strategy in the long run.

These businesses need to start thinking differently if they want to succeed, and my message to the young adults affected is 'keep flagging these incidents to Fair Work Australia' so that they have to take notice and help fix this problem.

Thanks for your time, SC.

THE GATEWAY MOTORWAY

The Gateway Motorway, also uncommonly known as Leo Herschel bridge is a bridge that connects large parts of Brisbane together and is an all-round great bridge, different in size to most bridges we have around Brisbane but a bridge nonetheless. The trouble is, we are still being tolled on it

The most recent redevelopment of the bridge back in 2010, added a second bridge to house 6 lanes each. This was a whopping $350 million and part of a $1.88 billion redevelopment of the highway. The Australian government sold the rights to the existing motorways network and the legacy way tunnel for $7 billion, pocketed the cash and is still allowing Transurban to jack up the tolls even 8 years after the bridge was built as a means of getting their investment money back as soon as they can. Which unsurprisingly, is another tax that the Australian population must pay for. When the dual bridge was opened in 2010 the toll price of an average car was $3.85, and it was estimated that 100,000 vehicles go over the bridges in a single day. With this maths the bridge should have been paid off as of at least September 2012.

According to statistics released from Transurban, the gateway motorway route alone generated a $177 million in revenue in the 2013- 2014 financial year. We can assume that this has increased in the last 4 years due to rising toll prices and a population increase of 300,000 in Brisbane. What once was a $350 million bridge development has turned into a $170 million a year investment for a company that will only continue to put prices up. It is entirely unfair that although this bridge has already been paid off yet still tolled, it contributes around 40% of Transurban's $370,000 revenue from their $7 billion investment, meaning they will of course continue to toll this bridge at least until they get their money's worth from all toll roads.

What makes this bridge different from the roads and other bridges that we as Australians pay for? Obviously the $7 billion was absorbed into the government but how can we trust an organization that turns something that we already get taxed on into a money-making scheme? a good thing that originally would be taxed on for 2 years and then become free, has turned into a money maker for a corporation that the government is ok get money from. I agree that the tolls are a great way to pay for infrastructure that requires large expenses to pay for, but the government shouldn't be seeing infrastructure as an investment. If the government did not have enough money to fund this bridge a privatised company should have been allowed to pay for it and toll it to a certain time, not to profit too much from the bridge but to make the allocation of funds worthwhile.

If simple things like a bridge to connect two sides of the city cannot be done with ease and with no extra costs to the population, then the government is failing us! Which makes me wonder how they will cope with the inevitable transitioning into a society that does not rely so heavily on old technologies. This bridge is a clear injustice and proof of not only corporate greed but poor planning from the Australian government for a quick buck. Will the government just allow privatised companies to take advantage of everyday citizens because of their laziness and negligence? I guess we will have to try to change these things, because as a young person it's the world we will have to deal with.

Although you may look at this bridge as a great piece of infrastructure that helps you get to work or see your love ones quicker, it is really everything that is wrong with this country. The government is so quick to look short term to get money for now, that it completely overlooks how these companies are exploiting everyday people. They take the $7 billion for a road that would cost a fraction and have just been tolled for a couple of years, and they allow a company like Transurban to increase prices for long as they see fit, increasing them every year. If we as a country need a bridge, or we as a country need a road, we shouldn't be hindering progress with trying to profit. Seeing something like this saddens me deeply, as I can see how much further we could come as a country if these things were done differently.

YOUR STARS

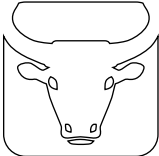

Aquarius Jan 21-Feb 19: This is a great time for reaching out to people you may not have been in contact with for a while. Pick up the phone or send them an email and make it clear you want to get together again. It's time to renew a beautiful friendship.

Pisces Feb 20: March 20: Go out of your way to make friends with powerful people. At this time of year more than most you seem to be aware that who you know is every bit as important as what you know, so use your charm and start moving up in the world.

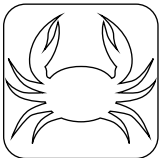

Aries March 21-April 20: This should be an extremely fortunate time for you and whatever minor obstacles you may encounter along the way you will easily find ways to handle them. The planets are very much on your side now, so show the world what you can do.

Taurus April 21- May 21: The Sun in the wealth area of your chart means there is a good chance you will enjoy some sort of windfall over the next few weeks, but you must not let that stop you from making an effort yourself. Strive more to earn more.

Gemini May 22-June 21: The most important thing now is that you leave partners, loved ones and relatives in no doubt how you feel about them – and, of course, you feel only good things. You can never say those two little words "I love you" too often or too loud.

Cancer June 22-July 23: Be careful what you allow yourself to think over the next 24 hours because your imagination is so powerful that you could easily create a reality for yourself that may not be what you truly desire. Control your mind, don't let it control you.

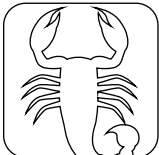

Leo July 24-Aug 23: Cosmic activity in your fellow Fire sign of Sagittarius makes it easy for you to persuade those you live, work and do business with that you know what you are doing and that they should join you in doing it too. You can be so persuasive Leo.

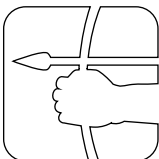

Virgo Aug 24-Sept 23: There are some strong emotions in play at the moment and if you are not very careful you could get swept away by them. You need to remember that as a Virgo your greatest strength is your rational way of looking at the world.

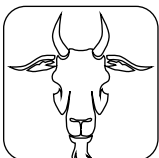

Libra Sept 24-Oct 23: Chances are you will say some pretty outrageous things over the next few days but that's okay – in fact it's good. You will express yourself with such conviction that no one will dare disagree with you. You'll benefit, and so will they.

Scorpio Oct 24-Nov 22: You must not let others persuade you that you need to buy certain things to keep up with the latest fads and fashions. Don't waste your money on trinkets you don't need and quite possibly will never even use. Be strong enough to say "No".

Sagittarius Nov 23-Dec 21: No effort is too much for you now and whatever goal it is you are working towards will soon be within reach. You don't have to go it alone though. If you join forces with like-minded people you'll be moving mountains in a matter of days.

Capricorn Dec 22- Jan 20: You will know instinctively today if what you are being told is on the level, and chances are your sixth sense will warn it's a lie. You are under no obligation to believe what others say – your only obligation is to protect yourself.

MOVE TOWARDS A BETTER FUTURE

with Leonie Schilling's

North Lakes Counselling Services

Leonie has turned our relationship around and we are going in a great direction with both of us much happier. Should have done it years ago

Professional, kind and compassionate. She helped clear my hazy perception and set positive goals towards moving forward in my life

Incredibly grateful to Leonie for her spot-on advice regarding my highly emotional, anxious child.

After being very sceptical of the process, this lady made me feel very at ease and was very gentle with my feelings of grief.

NEW GENERATION AT RISK FROM ASBESTOS

Mum and dad renovators and young DIY enthusiasts are at risk of becoming 'third wave' asbestos victims

Asbestos was first used in Australia in the 1880s. Over the next century as it was mined, manufactured, and used extensively around the country, the industry accepted dust exposure as a normal occupational hazard. However history would show that asbestos dust was particularly lethal according to the Australian Asbestos Network who categorise three waves of asbestos related disease.

The first wave of illness and death occurred among asbestos mine, mill and transport workers who handled the raw asbestos fibre itself as it was dug out of the ground, milled to separate the fibre from surrounding rock, and then trucked, railed and shipped to manufacturing plants.

A second wave of asbestos-related disease has hit workers using products containing asbestos. Because asbestos was included in so many manufactured goods, asbestos-related diseases have spread to building and construction workers, rail workers, power station workers, shipbuilders and tradespersons – such as plumbers, boilermakers and electrical installers – who cut and fitted or dismantled and refitted asbestos sheeting, pipes and lagging or insulation.

A third wave of disease affects all of society as people are environmentally exposed in their workplaces, homes and the whole built landscape. As the building fabric of workplaces and homes containing asbestos products has aged, it has become more dangerous because the loosened fibres are released into the atmosphere. In this way even schools with asbestos-cement roofs have become potential danger points.

Now, the Queensland Building and Construction Commission (QBCC) has instigated an asbestos awareness campaign as the popularity of renovation TV shows and the upcoming holiday season has led to an increase in owner-builder permit applications.

So far this financial year the QBCC has seen a 14 per cent increase in owner-builder permit applications, with around 1400 permits issued since January 2017 for work on homes built prior to 1990, when asbestos was widely-used.

Meanwhile the death toll for asbestos-related diseases continues to climb with an average of 4000 deaths in Australia each year.

QBCC Commissioner Brett Bassett said asbestos-related risks still needed to be front of mind for those potentially exposed to the material.

"There are a lot of things that renovators need to consider when they undertake a big project, but we want to make sure that asbestos isn't glossed over and viewed as an old problem relegated to the past," Mr Bassett said.

"With the QBCC's role in providing permits for owner-builders, we are uniquely placed to communicate to people undertaking large-scale home renovations who may come in contact with asbestos.

"Already, where applicants indicate asbestos removal is a part of their planned work, we are providing them with up-to-date information on the safe removal and disposal of the materials.

"Over the next year, the QBCC will be looking to further leverage our partnerships with agencies who have been at the forefront of the asbestos issue and connect our owner-builders with the information they need to avoid the risks of asbestos in older buildings."

While renovators can be exposed to hidden asbestos in pre-1990 homes, the substance has been sneaking onto building sites in imported building materials, meaning tradies as well as renovators need to be vigilant.

"The fact is there are now apprentices on worksites who were not born when the Australia-wide ban on asbestos came in, and may not be aware of the devastating impact it can have," Mr Bassett said.

In addition to the awareness action plan, Mr Bassett said the Non-conforming Building Products Amendment Act, which came into effect in November last year, gave the QBCC power to hold the entire building supply chain to account for the use of building products that do not meet standards, including asbestos-containing materials.

"We will not hesitate to protect our licensees and the wider public by using our expanded powers to ensure new asbestos-containing materials do not enter the Queensland construction supply chain," he said.

USELESS FACT No. 42

Did You Know?

In 1930, a patent was issued to Helene Shelby for a giant, glowing-eyed skeleton that was designed to make criminals confess.

The idea was for police to scare suspects into telling all by sitting them in a dark room, raising a curtain to reveal the device, and questioning them through a megaphone in the skeleton's skull – which contained a camera to record their statements for use in court.
