QUEENSLAND'S FIRST KOALA ADVISORY COUNCIL MEETS

The way forward for koala conservation in Queensland was at the centre of discussion at the recent first meeting of the Queensland Koala Advisory Council.

The group of leading experts will advise on the development of a new koala conservation strategy for Queensland, and oversee the implementation of recommendations suggested by the Koala Expert Panel Report.

Currently, the biggest threat to Queensland's koala population is the loss of habitat – but dog attacks, vehicle strikes and disease are also responsible for koala deaths.

"This month the Queensland Government added an extra 190,000 hectares of koala habitat in South East Queensland to essential habitat mapping.

"The land was identified using improved modelling techniques to protect important koala habitat."

Mark Townend, Chief Executive Officer, RSPCA Queensland and Chair of the Koala Advisory Council said the establishment of the Council was a positive move by government.

"The Council has a diverse group of expertise to shape the future of koala management in South East Queensland," Mr Townend said.

"Evidence-based policy must help inform future decisions around koala management and we will work closely with the government to achieve the best possible outcome for koalas."

After thousands of entries, Keira from North Lakes has become one of the finalists in the global competition and will have her drawing sent to Sweden for the chance to be made into a soft toy and sold in IKEA stores around the world in 2019.

MORE ITEMS AT MORETON BAY TREASURE MARKETS

Moreton Bay's Treasure Markets will have more items for residents to choose from this festive season.

Spokesperson for Asset Construction & Maintenance Cr Adam Hain said following discussions with the Office of Fair Trading (OFT), some items which were previously removed from shelves are now available in an alternative form for purchase at the Dakabin and Caboolture Treasure Markets.

"Based on information supplied by the OFT on how we can reduce risk and meet Australian Consumer Laws, council has restocked bicycle parts but not whole bikes and also soft toys and children's clothes provided they have their warning labels for 3+ years tags attached," Cr Hain said.

Approved items now include (but are not restricted to) motorised mowers; whipper snippers; building materials (doors, window frames, fencing, timber, steel and colour bond sheets); dining, lounge and bedroom furniture; cooking and serving ware; books; artworks and household items such as kitchen sinks.

While electrical items will be permanently left off the shelves, non-electrical parts such as fridge doors will be available for sale.

More than 1,800 tonnes of preloved goods were sold at the Market this year.

The Treasure Markets will be closed on Christmas Day and re-open on Boxing Day.

Dakabin and Caboolture Treasure Markets will continue to accept donated items.

FIND TIME TO VISIT HOWARD SMITH WHARVES OVER THE BREAK

A new world-class waterfront dining and entertainment precinct opened its doors along the Brisbane River recently with Brisbane's newest overwater bar and dining spot. Stage one of the progressive Howard Smith Wharves development is now complete.

The new Howard Smith Wharves (HSW) project represents $110 million game-changer reactivating 3.4 hectares of Brisbane's riverside and provides a new water's edge public park. Dubbed as lifestyle and leisure precinct, the area completes the missing link along the inner city reaches of the Brisbane River.

A long time in the making, Brisbane's Lord Mayor Graham Quirk and Cr Vicki Howard joined Howard Smith Wharves CEO Luke Fraser and Founder Adam Flaskas in the first lift ride to officially open stage 1 of the Howard Smith Wharves progressive opening.

Lord Mayor Graham Quirk said the lifestyle and leisure precinct would create more to see and do, completing the missing link along the inner city reaches of the Brisbane River.

"For many years the heritage-listed wharf buildings have been closed to the public, however, thanks to a three-year restoration project, the precinct has been reimagined into a vibrant lifestyle precinct for both residents and tourists," Cr Quirk said.

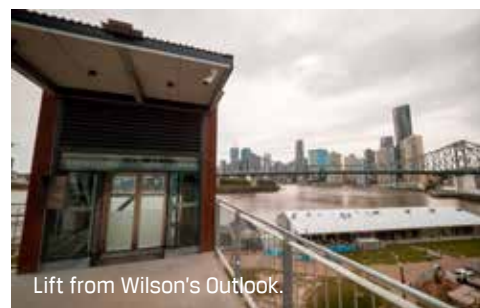

The first phase of venue openings includes the Rivershed event space, Howard's Hall, Felons Brewing Co., Mr Percival's, the Main and East Lawns and the lift from Bowen Terrace near Wilson's Outlook.

Brisbane's newest overwater bar and dining spot, Mr Percival's, is also now open to the public. Set above the Brisbane River and underneath the northern end of the Story Bridge Mr Percival's offers dramatic views of the city skyline. The octagon-shaped venue takes its design cues from Europe's most iconic beach clubs. With cuisine by head chef Damien Styles, formerly of chef-hatted The Fish House, Mr Percival's name was inspired by the much-loved pelican from 1976 movie Storm Boy.

Every aesthetic element of the Mr Percival's is informed by the elegant eye of Anna Spiro, from the architectural framework and the speakeasy-style Octagon shaped bar, the atmosphere at Mr Percival's has been designed to inspire a sense of year-long summer—making it a must-visit for locals, and tourists alike.

"This is a milestone moment for us," says Adam Flaskas, Director of Howard Smith Wharves.

Lift from Wilson's Outlook.

Mr Percival's

"To see this venue open is extremely close to my heart, as it has been my vision in the making for some time - and to have so many respected locals involved from Anna Spiro to Damien Styles - makes it all the more thrilling.

"Mr Percival's is a world-class venue, one that will be part of Brisbane redefining itself as a global food and wine centre. I can't wait to welcome locals and visitors into it later this year."

Rising from an abandoned industrialised area first built in 1935 to offer relief work during the Great Depression, the HSW project is part of a large-scale vision to transform Brisbane into a world-class tourism, recreation and lifestyle destination.

Newly opened Felons Brewing Co. is a 500-seat wholesale and retail brewery with a bevy of locally brewed and must-sip collaborations. The venue gets its name from the four felons who stumbled upon the waterway in 1828, today known as Brisbane River.

"We fell in love with the story of four felons who were the first—after local Aboriginal Australians—to discover Brisbane River," explains General Manager Ash Cranston.

"It seemed to reflect our core values of adventure, freedom and fearlessness, and it made sense to name ourselves after a story linked to the foundation of Brisbane, and the river where our home is," he said.

The centrepiece of the finished precinct is Rivershed, a former heritage wharf building re-engineered into a flexible event space with uninterrupted views of the river and the Story Bridge and space for up to 1000 visitors.

Serving the type of Greek food you want to cook at home, and embracing the warmer climate is GRECA, a modern interpretation of the Greek taverna, now open. At GREC, tables spill out into the open air, inside the spartan interior you'll find original timber and Mediterranean whites, polished concrete floors and simple furnishings. The restaurant's open kitchen and fire pit blazes the atmosphere of a raucous family kitchen with casual/fancy dining.

Still to come in the HSW project is Stanley, a Hong Kong-inspired restaurant and bar housed in a two-storey, 1930s heritage-listed former water-police building. Toko, a contemporary Japanese cuisine taking inspiration from the 'Izakaya', that will embrace Brisbane's sunny climate with open air dining and views of the river and finally scheduled for March 2019 is the luxury boutique Art Series Hotel. Featuring the work Australian painter Vincent Fantauzzo, the five-star hotel will provide stylish and comfortable accommodation at Howard Smith Wharves with 164 rooms and suites, a pool terrace, and bar, as well as retail and a restaurant on the lower level.

The Howard Smith Wharves were built in the 1930s and used for cargo and naval purposes during WWII, before later operating as the headquarters for the Water Police. The new Howard Smith Wharves are accessible from the New Farm Riverwalk, City Reach Boardwalk and two cliff face lifts from Bowen Terrace. The two new glass lifts each carry up to 21 people can be accessed from the footpath on the southern side of Bowen Terrace and provide some of the best views of the Story Bridge and Brisbane's CBD.

MARRIAGE TRADITION: I DON'T WANT TO CHANGE MY SURNAME

Hi Leonie,

I have wanted to write in for a while now. I have been engaged for nine months to a wonderful guy that I do love, and he loves me for sure. I am in my early thirties.

I am really struggling with being asked to change my surname when we get married. I really don't want to do this, and it is causing me a lot of upset when I should be really enjoying my upcoming marriage and starting my new life as a married woman.

My fiancé has made quite a few statements which just assume that I will take his name and to make matters worse he has two brothers and their wives have both changed their name so if I don't, I will be the odd one out. I don't want to be difficult and I don't want to upset my fiancé and his family but I'm worried that I will just end up sucking it up and changing my name and hating myself for not keeping my true name.

Why should I give up my identity?

I don't understand why women so freely do this and I don't understand why we are expected to in the first place. I feel that if I cave on this, it will just be the beginning and I will end up caving on everything in our marriage.

I have all my qualifications and achievements in my name. I have also built a strong career profile, and all of this is a good reason to stay as I am and not to be forever upset. Why did this tradition start in the first place? Why should I have to change my name to satisfy other people?

Danni/Margate

Hi Danni,

The answer is simple: you shouldn't have to change your name.

The whole idea of a woman taking her husband's surname started back in 9th-century and it was called the doctrine of coverture.

WHY SHOULD I GIVE UP MY IDENTITY?

According to my research, this doctrine determined that women did not have any legal rights or identity without their husband. So, when women came into the world, they took their fathers name and then when they married, they were given way to another man in marriage and then took his name. We all know the term "Giving away the bride" and this relates to this archaic doctrine that in my view has no place in modern society.

Some people argue that its important to have a family name especially if there are going to be children but this idea really doesn't hold up when you consider the percentage of marriages that fail with the mother remarrying yet another man with another name.

Some women choose to hyphenate their name in front of their new husband's name, but this can be impractical with especially long surnames.

You are not alone when you say that your surname is part of your identity. I certainly didn't change my name to my husbands.

Schilling is my fathers' surname and it will be mine until I die. It's Schilling on my birth certificate and it will be Schilling on my death certificate because that's who I am.

In my view the whole idea of giving away the bride like property or a burden is just as archaic and barbaric as the concept of a dowry which is a transfer of parental property, gifts or money at the marriage of a daughter.

Now if a woman wants to change her surname to her husband's name, that's fine and God's speed to her but she should never do so against her own will or good judgment.

You say that your fiancé loves you. If this is the case, he would not brow beat or emotionally blackmail you into doing something that is not sitting well with you and your belief system and making you upset.

I would show him the respect of not assuming that he is on an ego trip about his surname or that he doesn't care about your beliefs and feelings. Surely, he wants you as you are and the person that you are is one that wants her own identity and to keep her true name.

Talk honestly to him about your feelings and your concerns before you get married. If he feels so strongly that you should share the same surname, he can always change his to yours - see if that brings some realisations.

There should be many compromises in making a marriage work but changing your name and what you call yourself for the rest of your life against your will should not be one of them.

Till next year, Leonie

ASK FOR AUSSIE SEAFOOD THIS CHRISTMAS

Whether you're throwing a prawn on the barbie, ordering some snapper with beer batter or grilling your barra to perfection local is always the most fresh

With beautiful warm weather expected for the big day, people don't want to be slaving over a hot stove, they are far more interested in buying a couple of kilos of fish, lobster or crab and sitting down to enjoy them, or tossing another prawn on the barbie while they unwrap another pressie.

Seafood Industry Australia, the national peak-body representing the Australian Seafood Industry has reminded consumers to "Ask for Aussie seafood" this Christmas.

"If you want to be certain you're eating sustainable, healthy, world-class seafood this Christmas, "Ask for Aussie seafood"," SIA CEO Jane Lovell said.

"Gone are the days of the traditional English roast. Now, the Aussie tradition of beautiful, fresh, local seafood has firmly cemented its place as the centrepiece for a quintessential Australian Christmas.

"Australia's commercial fishers are working hard in the lead up to the festive period to ensure we have access to a wide variety of world class seafood for Christmas.

While the variety of Australian seafood on offer this Christmas period is endless, prawns are traditionally the biggest seller.

"Australians are expected to eat 50,000 tonnes of prawns this festive season, or 40 per cent of Australia's yearly prawn consumption. On average, 11 prawns are eaten by each man, woman and child during the festive season.

"When it comes to Christmas entertaining there are four magic words for last-minute drop-bys: ready-to-eat seafood. Whether it's cooked prawns or freshly shucked oysters, simply throw them on a platter with some lemon wedges, a zesty sauce, a few finger bowls and let your guests help themselves. Or, if a sit-down meal is more your style the tried and tested prawn cocktail is always a winner, while lobster rolls and seafood skewers go down a treat and a whole fish is a guaranteed show-stopper.

"To ensure you don't miss out on your Aussie seafood this festive season it's always a good idea to place an order with your fishmonger early.

Seafood is part of the Aussie Christmas culture and remember to 'Ask for Aussie'.

HAPPY NEW YEAR COMMUTERS

fares to increase on January 7

On January 7, 2019, fares for all TransLink public transport services across South East Queensland will increase based on the Brisbane Consumer Price Index (CPI) of 1.8 per cent, it's not all bad news as public transport fares still remain below what we were paying in 2014.

Head of TransLink Matthew Longland said the CPI-based adjustment will mean an increase of between 6 and 11 cents per trip on the majority of journeys, with Fairer Fares still providing travel incentives for many public transport users including children, job seekers, asylum seekers, and anyone travelling off-peak or more than 8 journeys a week.

"Adjusting fares by CPI ensures that fare change is aligned to cost of living measures," Mr Longland said.

"The cost of a 1 zone adult go card journey will increase by 6 cents to $3.31. The same trip was $3.35 back in November 2014.

"A 4-zone adult go card journey which will take you from Brisbane CBD out to Bribie Island, or Ormeau, or west to Rosewood, will increase by 14 cents to $8.11, and for commuters travelling between 5 and 8 zones, the fare rise will be between 19 and 35 cents.

"A tertiary student who is entitled to concession fares and travelling one or two zones to university will see an increase of 3 or 4 cents per trip, which equates to about the price of a cup of coffee for an entire semester's travel."

The cost of an adult zone 2 journey into the city during peak period will be $4.03. The same trip was up to $5.96 in November 2014.

"Revenue from public transport fares falls well short of funding requirements to run public transport, and a CPI-based increase simply assists in keeping pace with the current subsidy levels, which has the State Government subsidising about 80 per cent of a public transport fare."

Free travel for children on the weekends has been used for more than 1.5 million trips, and extending off-peak to start before 6am to encourage earlier travel has resulted in 4.6 million eligible trips.

Record numbers of people are catching public transport across South East Queensland with 182.83 million passenger trips in the 2017-18 financial year. Bus, train, ferry and tram patronage all increased.

For more information on public transport, visit the TransLink website translink.com.au or phone 13 12 30.

Police arrested a 26-year-old Morayfield man for the alleged abduction and assault of a girl taken from a North Lakes shopping centre on Saturday December 8. The man has been charged with one count each of deprivation of liberty, taking a child for immoral purposes and indecent treatment of a child under 12 years. He appeared in the Pine Rivers Magistrate Court.

Detective Superintendent Fleming said he was proud of the dedication and hard work of police in apprehending this person and putting him before the court.

"My thanks also extend to Westfield North Lakes staff for their cooperation and support to police in this investigation," he said.

"Crimes in circumstances such as this are not common, but it is a timely reminder that a very small number of people could take advantage of an opportunity to harm a child.

As seasonal shopping, warm weather and school holidays all drive increased crowds at shopping centres at this time of year, it's important that we remember the risks to our youngest, and even though it's a difficult conversation to have, we must have it. Our children should be free to enjoy themselves, but it is important that we maintain appropriate vigilance of them and our surrounds.

Child Safety Services offers this advice to protect children from sexual abuse:

You should always: know who is looking after your children, listen to your children and believe what they say—children hardly ever make up stories about sexual abuse and watch your child for signs of distress in a specific person's company

Be aware of possible signs of grooming: Grooming refers to the way some offenders form relationships and build trust with parents, carers, teachers and other children in order to get close to a child and create the opportunity for sexual abuse. Grooming can be difficult to identify as the behaviour itself may not be abusive or sexual. It is also important to note that not all offenders use grooming techniques.

When you're not with your child: You have a right to know your child is safe and to ask questions about what they'll be doing and who'll be looking after them.

Teach your child: Help your child to be safe without frightening them. You could tell them:

- everybody has the right to feel safe
- that the parts of their bodies covered by underwear are private
- what the right names for these body parts are
- that they should let you know if anyone tries to touch or photograph their private parts
- who they can talk to if you're not available.

If your child is not yet in school, you can:

- teach them about personal safety in simple language
- repeat the same rules often
- play 'what if' games to repeat the message about being safe e.g. what if a stranger asks you to go inside their house to look for their lost cat?

If your child is in primary school, you can teach them:

- your family safety rules
- how to use the rules in a situation that could be dangerous.

You can encourage your teenager to:

- think for themselves
- make good decisions
- be strong and confident.

Emergency contacts

In an emergency, phone Triple Zero (000).

Phone your local police station about criminal matters related to child sexual abuse.

If you have reason to suspect a child is experiencing, or is at risk of, sexual abuse, find out how to report child abuse.

TRADIES TO BE BETTER PROTECTED IN 2019

New financial reporting to help protect building industry jobs

Queenslanders working in the building and construction sector will soon have greater protection from the devastating impact of company collapses.

New financial reporting laws, that take effect from 1 January 2019, will help ensure Queensland's small businesses are paid in full and on time.

The reforms will restore requirements for licensees to report their financial situation to the Queensland Building and Construction Commission (QBCC) annually.

Over 230,000 Queenslanders are employed in the State's $46 billion building and construction sector the reforms will improve oversight for the QBCC to reduce this risk and to mitigate the impacts as much as possible," he said.

The changes will see a return to annual reporting and a requirement for licensees to notify the QBCC of significant changes to their financial position.

HALF OF AUSSIE RENTERS ARE IN HOMES THAT NEED REPAIRS

Grocery shoppers have better protections than those who rent

New research from leading consumer and tenancy groups (CHOICE, National Shelter and the National Association of Tenant Organisations (NATO)) shows that Australians who rent are living in fear of eviction and rent rises.

The report, DISRUPTED: The consumer experience of renting in Australia, surveyed Australians who rent and found:

- 51% of people who rent are currently living in a home that needs repairs
- 68% of Australians who rent are concerned that a request for repairs could mean a rent increase
- 44% are concerned a request for repairs could get them evicted from their homes
- Nearly 1 in 10 had previously been evicted "without grounds" and nearly 1 in 10 fear they'll be forced to leave their homes in the next 12 months.

Given the significant fears from Australians about retaliatory "no-grounds" evictions, the report calls for a nationwide ban on the practice.

"Nearly half of the people who rent in Australia are afraid of eviction if they ask for a repair. That's not good enough. No-grounds evictions effectively render our other protections useless. You shouldn't be kicked out of your home because the person who rents it to you can't be bothered to provide basic maintenance and repairs. Shelter is too important for the livelihood of our families and loved ones – no-grounds evictions must be banned across Australia," said CEO of Tenants Queensland, Penny Carr.

"Australians have stronger consumer protections when they buy something from their local supermarket than when they spend tens of thousands of dollars renting a home. We've got families living with mould all over their homes and left waiting weeks for repairs – this simply isn't good enough. Under the Australian Consumer Law, Australians know that if we have a problem with something we buy, then we have the right to a repair, refund, or replacement. But when it comes to getting the most basic of our needs – shelter – Australians live in fear. It's time for consistent and fair laws that guarantee every Australian has a safe, secure and affordable home," said Erin Turner, Director of Campaigns and Communications at CHOICE.

YOUNGCARE PARTNERS WITH COUNCIL TO DELIVER INTEGRATED HOUSING DEVELOPMENT AT NORTH LAKES

Not-for-profit organisation Youngcare has partnered with Moreton Bay Regional Council and the Catholic Archdiocese of Brisbane to build an accessible, mixed-use housing development for young people with high physical-care needs in the state's fastest-growing suburb of North Lakes.

The partnership comes at a critical time, coinciding with accessible accommodation opportunities triggered by the rollout of the National Disability Insurance Scheme (NDIS) and SDA reforms in July this year, and the outstanding need for accessible housing in the Moreton Bay Region.

Youngcare Chief Executive Officer Anthony Ryan said the development would allow more young Queenslanders with high-care needs to live the young lives they deserve as valued members of a wider, integrated community.

"Currently, there are around 2,500 young Queenslanders with high-care needs living in institutionalised housing like aged care and hospital rooms, with more than 200 of them living in the Moreton Bay Region," Ryan said.

"With the support of the Moreton Bay Regional Council and Catholic Archdiocese of Brisbane, we can change the future for some of these young people, and provide them with the dignity and choice they deserve through the construction of housing to suit their needs."

Upon completion in late 2019, the integrated development will be fully equipped with state-of-the-art high-care technology and equipment, featuring onsite and around-the-clock care, catering to residents' individual needs.

Mayor for Moreton Bay Regional Council Allan Sutherland said the Council was proud to partner with Youngcare and the Catholic Archdiocese of Brisbane to work as a community towards greater inclusivity through accessible infrastructure.

"More than 160,000 young Australians call Moreton Bay home, and it's important not one of them is left behind. This partnership will ensure young people in our community with high care needs can live with greater independence in accommodation best-suited for them," Mayor Sutherland said.

"The Astley Parade site is the perfect location for Youngcare's newest project with great access to local shops, amenities, medical centres and facilities, and public transport services."

Councillor for Division 4 Julie Greer congratulated Youngcare on its efforts to support young Australians.

"Youngcare has done a brilliant job helping to shape the lives of many young Australians, and I'm proud that we've been able to work together with Anthony and his team to bring this development to North Lakes," Cr Greer said.

"As a community, we're working towards greater inclusivity through accessible infrastructure, services and most recently, the adoption of our Disability Access and Inclusion Plan, and Youngcare's announcement builds on that progress."

The Archdiocese of Brisbane has taken a development lease for the Astley Parade site with the Moreton Bay Regional Council. The Archdiocese, which will fund the design and construction, will purchase the land which will then be leased to Youngcare.

Youngcare invites those aged 18–65 with high physical care needs to express their interest by calling the Youngcare Connect Team on 1800 844 727.
