PRIME MINISTER VISITS PACKER LEATHER

Did you know there's a world class kangaroo hide tannery at Narangba that they export high quality, high performance leather all around the world?

Packer Leather, the longtime local employer, just near Costco on Boundary Road, is a supplier for household name brands, both global and local, who prefer Packer's high quality leather for products ranging from sporting goods to safety gear. If you've ever kicked a Sherrin brand football, chances are it was made from leather refined just up the road. Packer products keep Firefighters' hands safe from heat and flames and are also found in shoes, upholstery, bags, wallets and more.

The company is a fifth-generation family business established in 1891 at Chermside, relocating to Narangba in 1972. Lindsay Packer is the Chairman of the Board at Packer Leather, who alongside many of his family employ many locals. It's a fair-go workplace where employees are encouraged, and given the opportunity, to reach their full potential.

Among other accolades, the company won the Premier of Queensland's Exporter of the Year in 2015, and the Tom Burns Award for Excellence in Asia Pacific in 2014.

Packer's main product, kangaroo leather, is sourced (unfarmed) from all over the country, and valued for its strength and grain when compared to other leathers at the same thickness, making it ideal for products that are required to perform specialised tasks, last, and look good doing so.

Last Tuesday, Prime Minister Malcolm Turnbull and Local federal member Luke Howarth MP visited the factory to discuss issues affecting local businesses and workers, particularly taxes electricity costs, as much a topical item for businesses as it is for consumers.

Late last year at a press conference Mr Turnbull said business tax cuts and putting downward pressure on electricity prices were high on his government's agenda.

The fifth-generation family business is a fair-go workplace where more than 100 local employees are encouraged, and given the opportunity, to reach their full potential

"Support for business in particular from us, small business tax cuts, are creating jobs and growing wages. Those tax cuts for small and medium business apply to businesses up to $50 million per year turnover. These are overwhelmingly Australian-owned family businesses, and they employ half of the private sector workforce. So, most of them are small businesses, but collectively, it is half of the entire private sector workforce. And that is where you see the strong jobs growth," he said.

Businesses like Packer Leather employ more than 100 locals but represent a diminishing league of Australian manufacturers.

"This is why the government legislated to reduce tax rates for small and medium businesses like Packer Leather, because we know it creates jobs for people living locally," Luke Howarth MP Federal Member for Petrie said.

Also last year, the Federal Government formed a National Energy Guarantee with a goal of increasing reliability, reducing emissions and reducing costs to businesses and households - without subsidy or taxes.

"We have taken action to reduce power bills. You have already seen what has happened with gas prices, wholesale gas prices. They have come down. You have seen the action we have taken on retailers, retail prices, making sure customers get the right deals," the Prime Minister said at the time.

"These are all actions that are easing the burden on hard-working Australian families and ensuring that they have more money in their pockets - that gives them the confidence to grow and to hire."

These efforts aim to keep Queensland businesses and manufacturers like Packer Leather and others employing locals, competitive in the international marketplace and innovative.

"Packer Leather is the only tannery left in the region - I want to ensure that they are able to keep their doors open and employing locals as many other businesses have turned to overseas manufacturing to cut costs," Mr Howarth said.

THE MANGANIYAR SEDUCTION

One of the most original and mesmerising live performances on earth is headed for Brisbane... and we've got tickets to win

Unless you've travelled to see this show, you won't have seen anything like this before. The Manganiyar Seduction is a visually activated, musically energised masterpiece, and it's coming to Brisbane for the very first time.

*"RAPTUROUS...
JAW-DROPPING...
BUOYANT...
COMPELLING...
TRANQUIL..."*

...is how the production was described by the The New York Times, adding to the chorus of superlatives attributed to the show all over the world. Now, The Manganiyar Seduction will be performed just twice at the Queensland Performing Arts Centre on March 1 and 2, 2018.

During the show, forty musicians are seated in 36 red-curtained cubicles arranged in four horizontal rows stacked on top of the other. The concert begins when a single cubicle lights up and the first singer begins his song. Soon another cubicle lights up and then another - creating a dramatic and astounding crescendo of song and music, mesmerising and transporting audiences to another world.

As the ensemble grows in number and the sound gathers momentum, the skin-pricking climax is heralded by an sumptuous light show as all the pods glow and pulsate along with the musical rhythms in an extraordinary original concept, brilliantly executed.

The Manganiyars are a caste of Muslim musicians wpredominantly settled in the districts of Jaisalmer, Barmer and Jodhpur, in the heart of the Thar Desert, a vast northwestern region of the Indian subcontinent. They traditionally performed for Kings, however over the years their patrons have shifted from Kings to people who could give them a meal. It was in the 1970s that ethno-musicologist, the late Komal Kothari, discovered them and gave them into contemporary performance spaces.

Their repertoire includes ballads about those kings and also Sufi poems written by various mystics. They have songs for birth, marriage, feasts and more, and even though they are classified as folk musicians, their traditional music is classical and it clearly indicates the roots of classical music in India. It is the combination of raw folk with the complexity of classical music that makes them so special.

Director Roysten Abel has reversed the usual practice of using music for theatre, and instead, uses theatre to create magic in music. He describes what he calls, his First Seduction.

"While directing a play in Spain in 2006, I was accompanied by two Manganiyar musicians who formed part of the company. They would follow me and play music in all the places I went, most of the time overlooking the decorum of that space. I would wake up and sleep to their playing over the course of a fortnight, during which time a strange psychological event took place. Having left for Germany to direct another production, I realised that I missed the music so I would call them and ask them to sing over the phone. I was totally seduced."

"Returning to India filled with inspiration, I wanted to translate this seduction into a physical realm. For some reason, my experience made me think of a red light district, bordering on the burlesque inside my head, heart and body. I thought of windows in Indian palaces where women folk would view ceremonies or processions while unwittingly becoming the subjects of voyeurism themselves. For me, these windows came alive with musicians."

"I went to Jaisalmer and auditioned a thousand musicians, from whom I selected 45. The Manganiyars were not accustomed to rehearsals and I was attempting to translate an experience into a piece of theatre. We got into the process of understanding and trusting each other over a three-year period before arriving at The Manganiyar Seduction. But even after hearing it a thousand times, it still has the power to seduce me."

The Manganiyar Seduction will be presented twice only in Brisbane, on Thursday and Friday, March 1 and 2, 2018 at 8pm at the QPAC Concert Hall (adjoining Southbank).

Tickets start at $99, with family priced group tickets available starting at $249, and are available now via www.qpac.com.au or by calling 136 246.

CALLING ALL QUEENSLANDERS

To an unmissable game of Queensland Great vs Queensland Great - A Night with Cameron Smith and JT

On February 23 there's a footy event that will make your maroon blood glow brightly, it's the clash of Queensland great against Queensland great, at a place where history is forged - it's the Cameron Smith and Johnathan Thurston Testimonial Match at Suncorp Stadium.

Players like Cameron Smith and Johnathan Thurston come along only once in a lifetime, and when they do, it's reason to gather. And gather we will when League legends Smith and Thurston will be recognised for their incredible contribution to Rugby League in a special testimonial match to be played ahead of the 2018 season.

Smith's Melbourne Storm will take on Thurston's North Queensland Cowboys at their beloved Suncorp Stadium next year. It will be the first time the teams have faced each other since the 2017 NRL Grand Final, in which Smith's Storm won 34-6 over a Cowboys side playing its second Grand Final in three years, after losing co-captain Thurston to a season-ending shoulder injury in Origin II.

It will also mark the start of Thurston's final year in the NRL. The match will provide fans with an opportunity to pay tribute to two living legends, and will also be a chance for both Smith and Thurston to thank the fans who have supported them throughout their careers, ahead of what is set to be a memorable season for both.

Proving they're legends off the field as well, Smith and Thurston have announced three charities as official partners for the event, they are the Cowboys Community Foundation supported 'NRL Cowboys House', Ovarian Cancer Australia and Prostate Cancer Foundation. Both players' dedication to Rugby League is matched only by their commitment to giving back to the community so they are thrilled to be able to support these charities with a portion of ticket sales being donated to all three.

So, if you know what it feels like to bleed maroon, and are proud to call Queensland home, then this is the one game you must witness in 2018.

Tickets are available via Ticketek.com.au or 132849. The match will also be broadcast (exclusively) on Fox Sports or you could ...

HOW MUCH SUGAR IS IN YOUR CHILD'S LUNCH BOX?

Highlighting the sugar content of popular lunch box options.

Ask any parent, it's hard work getting the kids ready for school and many of us look to convenient options to help make school mornings a little less hectic.

Many parents think they've packed their child a healthy lunch to get them through the school day, but a lot of convenient choices are high in sugar – and it all adds up. For example, a lunch that includes a box of sultanas, a flavoured yogurt and a fruit juice is delivering more than double the recommended daily amount of sugar.

The World Health Organization recommends we eat no more than 25 grams (about six teaspoons) of free sugars a day for optimum health. Free sugars are those added to food and drinks or that occur naturally in honey, syrups and fruit juices.

There are more than six teaspoons of sugar in a single serve of some products such as apricot bars, cakes and sports drinks, and some products marketed as being healthy – such as muesli bars and on-the-go breakfast products – are surprisingly high in sugar.

Consuming too much sugar is an indicator of poor dietary patterns and excessive energy intake. This is a risk factor for excess weight gain and nutrition-related conditions, such as dental caries and Type 2 diabetes. In 2016, 26 per cent (259,000) of Queensland children were considered obese.

Limiting children's sugar intake is vital to the prevention of tooth decay, as bacteria in the mouth break down sugars found in food and drinks to create acids which then erode the tooth enamel, leading to decay.

The Australian Dental Association's Dr Sarah Raphael, a specialist paediatric dentist, says it's not just the sugar content of foods that parents need to be aware of, but how sticky some products marketed as being healthy – such as muesli bars and on-the-go breakfast products – are surprisingly high in sugar.

foods are and how long sugary foods stay in the mouth.

"Snacks that get stuck in the grooves of the teeth for long periods and sugary drinks that are continually sipped both put teeth at high risk of decay," she says. "Foods that are chewed and swallowed quickly tend to be less harmful for teeth. Even better are those foods that help to clean the mouth, such as vegetables and hard cheese."

Dr Raphael says it's important to limit the amount of time children spend snacking or drinking anything other than water so that saliva, the mouth's natural cleaner, has the chance to wash away food particles and provide minerals to keep teeth tough.

"Drinking tap water is also important because it washes sugars and acids away and often contains fluoride for extra protection against decay," she says.

Lindy Sank, Accredited Practising Dietitian said there has been a massive increase in mini snack packs being promoted as ideal for lunch boxes.

"The result is a lot of confusion for parents trying to make good choices and children often receiving many more items than is recommended for health."

"Parents sometimes pack three or four processed or packaged food items a day in their child's lunch box. "Ideally processed snack products should be limited to one item and ideally a low-sugar choice, such as popcorn, rice crackers, cheese and wholegrain crackers."

Ms Sank says parents are often misled by health messages on food packaging, with many packages highlighting the healthier components of the product. She says descriptions like "natural", "fat free", "no added sugars" and "no artificial colours or flavours" distract from other aspects of the product, such as having high free sugar and energy content, limited nutrients or being processed.

PACKING A HEALTHY SCHOOL LUNCH

Parents are encouraged to think about the healthy foods that can be added to lunch boxes quickly, and says most supermarkets now sell kid-size fruit for lunch boxes.

Swapping these highly-processed snack and packaged foods for more of the basics is the best way to give children the energy and nutrients their bodies and brains need to perform well at school.

Easy items to drop in a lunch bag include cherry tomatoes, snack cucumbers, baby carrots, even mini cans of baked beans, canned salmon and tuna.

Tips and inspiration for busy parents

- Include something from each of the 5 food groups: fruit, vegetables/legumes/beans, dairy, grain (cereal) foods, and lean meats/poultry/fish/eggs etc
- Limit snacks that are high in sugar and/or saturated fats e.g. chips, cakes, chocolate, donuts, biscuits
- Look for grain-based snacks with whole grains and high fibre
- Pick whole fruit over fruit juice – the vitamins, minerals and fibre make it more filling and nutritious
- Pack water as a drink

QAGOMA ACHIEVES RECORD TWO MILLION VISITORS IN 2017

The Queensland Art Gallery/ Gallery of Modern Art (QAGOMA) has set a new record for visitor numbers in 2017 with an attendance of more than 2.17 million.

The record-breaking attendance was attributed to a stellar back to back program of the world exclusive Marvel: Creating the Cinematic Universe, and exhibitions by two of the world's most renowned living artists, Gerhard Richter and Yayoi Kusama coinciding with the celebration of GOMA's 10th birthday.

Marvel: Creating the Cinematic Universe attracted more than 269,000 visitors, itself a record for a ticketed exhibition at QAGOMA.

"QAGOMA's rich forward program is supported by the Queensland Government's reinstatement of up to $10.8 million over four years for blockbusters and major exhibitions," Arts Minister Leeanne Enoch said.

"The Marvel exhibition was the first show staged under this blockbuster funding, and the second will be Patricia Piccinini: Curious Affection, which will occupy the entire ground floor of GOMA from 24 March to 5 August.

"This will be the most ambitious exhibition to date of work by the world-renowned Australian artist, known for her imaginative hybrid creatures.

"QAGOMA will also stage the 9th Asia Pacific Triennial of Contemporary Art, featuring new and significant art from across the region, from 24 November 2018 to 28 April 2019."

QAGOMA Director Chris Saines said the record numbers marked a major milestone for the gallery.

"This is a new record for us, and a direct result of our strong exhibition programming, which also included the newly reimagined Australian Collection at QAG and Sung Into Being, a beautiful exhibition of Aboriginal masterworks from the Janet Holmes à Court Collection," Mr Saines said.

"In September we unveiled our newly reconfigured Australian art collection with a display of more than 200 historical and contemporary works, including an extensive display of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander works, as well as major new commissions.

"Now that Picasso: The Vollard Suite has opened at QAG, and the Me, Myselfie and I interactive space has launched at GOMA's Children's Art Centre, we are so thrilled that all spaces in both buildings are open to the public.

"There is also still time for people to see Gerhard Richter: The Life of Images, which continues until 4 February, and to experience Yayoi Kusama: Life is the Heart of Rainbow, which is on until 11 February."

Tickets for Patricia Piccinini: Curious Affection are on sale now through qagoma.qld.gov.au

BUILDING RESILIENCE IN CHILDREN

DR ANITA GREEN - BRISBANE NORTH PHN

As a parent or carer, you've no doubt heard the word 'resilience' mentioned at one time or another. But what is resilience and why is it so important for children to be more resilient?

Resilience is about a person's ability to cope with and 'bounce back' from various stressful life situations, both big and small. Being resilient allows us to adapt and move on from stressful situations or crises, without ongoing difficulties.

You may have noticed amongst your own circle of friends and family that some people seem to naturally deal better with stress than others. According to Elizabeth Scott, a psychologist and counsellor specialising in family therapy and education, "emotional and physical resilience is, to a degree, something you're born with."

"Some people, by nature, are less upset by changes and surprises—this can be observed in infancy and tends to be stable throughout one's lifetime. Emotional resilience is also related to some factors that aren't under your control, such as age, gender, and exposure to trauma," says Ms Scott.

However, Ms Scott believes that emotional resilience is a trait that can be developed with a bit of effort. But what is the best way to achieve this with children?

While the word 'resilience' certainly isn't new to people who work with children and families, there are a wide range of views on what it actually means and what it looks like in day-to-day life.

In order to develop an agreed definition of resilience and how best to promote it to children aged 12 years and under, beyondblue commissioned the Children's Resilience Research Project.

Undertaken by the Parenting Research Centre and Australian Research Alliance for Children and Youth, the research was published in 2017 and revealed a number of key areas which help to build resilience in young children.

These include helping children to build supportive relationships, provide opportunities to develop their sense of independence and confidence and teaching them healthy and positive ways to manage and respond to emotions.

By allowing children to experience failure, exposing them to safe challenges and encouraging them to talk about their feelings, they are better equipped to deal with challenges now and into the future—possibly preventing mental health conditions later in life.

In an interview with the Herald Sun, beyondblue CEO Georgie Harman said that parents who wrap their children in "too much cotton wool" aren't allowing them to learn from valuable experiences that can help to build resilience.

"Parents need to provide their kids safe, healthy challenges ... remove the training wheels and let them ride," she said.

"Let them lose at a board game so they can learn how to lose.

"When they fall, let them pick themselves up. And teach them how to think positively," Ms Harman said.

As a result of this research, beyondblue has developed online resources for parents and carers on their Healthy Families website.

To support people working with children and families as well as raise community awareness about resilience it more broadly, beyondblue have also released their Building resilience in children aged 0-12: A practice guide.

KICKSTART YOUR SMALL BUSINESS

Another 298 small businesses will share in more than $1 million in funding to support new Queensland small businesses.

Minister for Employment and Small Business Shannon Fentiman last Thursday announced the successful applicants will receive assistance to access professional advice and support in the critical early stages of establishing a business.

"Grant recipient, Molten Store is a leading example of the Palaszczuk Government supporting small businesses to grow, especially in the early stages," Ms Fentiman said.

"Brisbane local Jessie Cameron took her jewellery business from popup stalls to a permanent store in the heart of fashionable James Street in Fortitude Valley.

"Jessie has followed her childhood passions for collecting treasures and crafting jewelry for herself and friends and turned this into a growing and vibrant small business.

"Shying away from mimicking the fast fashion trend, Molten Store is focused on 'unique boutique' creations."

"Since starting out online, the popularity for Jessie's beautiful accessories have taken off and it's fantastic that the demand for her products drove her business to be able to open a store in the heart of shopping precinct James Street in Fortitude Valley."

"With the help of a previous Small Business Digital Grant last year, Jessie has not only redeveloped her online store but also enhanced her instore business.

"Since then Molten Store has gone from strength to strength and she has been able to grow her business and employ more Queenslanders."

Ms Cameron thanked the Government for the support of small businesses in Queensland and said the grant funding would go a long way to making her business sustainable.

"Because of the Digital Grant, I've seen sales increase and I'm now inspired to harness this growth and plan for the future," Ms Cameron said.

"The Entrepreneur Grant means I

Jessie Cameron and Shannon Fentiman at Molten store last week

can access high-level accounting expertise and undertake an in-depth analysis of what I need to keep growing in stride with our grand ambitions.

"This grant has empowered me to plan for sustainable financial growth. The future is an exciting place."

"Small businesses and passionate people like Jessie, are the engine room of our diverse Queensland economy and supporting them to get off to the best possible start leads to more local jobs," Ms Fentiman said.

"These grants will provide professional advice to help our new small business owners to be successful and reach their goals.

"More than 97% of Queensland business are small businesses so it is vital that we continue to recognise the valuable contribution they make to our communities across the state.

"The funding of up to $5,000 will give small businesses a head start to a stronger future."

Another round of grants will open this year, visit www.business.qld.gov.au/entrepreneur for more information.

MAKING FRIENDS AT UNI IS TOUGH

Hi Leonie,

I'm a 24-year-old university student and what I find sooooo hard is making friends and talking to others without coming off as a fool or a try hard.

I really embarrassed myself at a seminar last week because I tried to talk about myself and my goals as my parents suggested but people literally just walked away.

I really want to have the kind of Uni experience I dreamed of with lots of friends and socialising and new experiences. I was awkward and a bit of a loner at school and I still have no idea why. I don't look particularly different to everyone else or dress funny or do drugs or drink or anything that may cause people to dodge me.

I've got five long years of university ahead of me and I don't want to go through it alone like I have done all my school life. Please help me find out what I am doing wrong and how to act to get friends.

Lorraine/Woody Point

Hi Lorraine,

It's so important to be authentic about who you are and to not put on some fake persona to encourage people to like you. If you act like someone else to make friends these people are not your friends because they have no idea who you really are. It's duplicitous to be a phoney and at the end of the day there is no percentage in it for you. It's exhausting to be acting all the time and you will very soon begin to feel that keeping up this act is really hard work. Don't do it to yourself.

So, my strongest advice is to always be yourself. Don't try to be any version of who you imaging might fit into a certain group. Life will teach you that not everyone will like you, but you will get your fair share of people who do. Now learning some good communication skills does not mean that you are being a phoney baloney because all the communication skills that you learn as you go through life naturally become a part of who you are, and they give you the tools to be a good friend and be true to yourself. With this in mind, here are a few tips you may like to take on board.

Take the focus off yourself.

Don't come off as a narcissist who is only interested in pumping themselves up or who instead of listening to others is only really thinking only about what they want to say next. Ask about others by using questions that encourage people to talk. This type of question is called Open Ended. For instance, "What are your plans when you finish uni?" and "What are your thoughts about taking a gap year?"

Don't engage in any social media when socialising. No facebook, no Instagram and no tweeting. It's the height of rudeness – if you're not a brain surgeon who is on call you can put your phone away to socialise. If you engage with devices when socialising with others, what you are really saying to that other person is that they are not enough company for you and you also need to be messaging, tweeting and photographing where you are and what you are eating and drinking to see what others think.

Be alert and engage with what people are saying. Actively listen with your whole body. Use strong attending skills such as leaning forward, showing interest and paraphrasing back to the person to clear up any confusion.

Just as in teaching you must consider who you are talking to. With this in mind, don't talk down to others who are clearly from a different educational or emotional level or big note about your achievements. Instead, always try to find common ground where everyone can join in.

Don't offend people with topics that may cause embarrassment or strong emotions. For example, don't talk about your belief in the right to die because you don't know what others are feeling about this and they could actually have/had a family member who is struggling with severe health issues.

I hope you have found some help here.

Till next week, Leonie

POLITICS AT THE PUB

Luke, Malcolm, schooners and banter at the Phoenix Bar

Okay, we know this is an edition already heavy with politicians. Regular readers will know that the Messenger is usually a bit broader than that, but Politics at the Pub with Luke Howarth and the PM was too interesting an invitation to pass up - not least due to this event eschewing the great Aussie convention of avoiding talk of politics at the pub.

As you read in the page 6 article of this edition, the Prime Minister has been in town and last Monday night he joined Federal Member for Petrie Luke Howarth for a lively Q&A on contemporary issues affecting locals and the nation in general.

Guests were invited from all over the Petrie electorate to the Phoenix Bar at the Bracken Ridge Tavern. Growing up, the Bracken Ridge Tavern was Luke's local watering hole. The venue itself remains independently owned.

It was an interesting evening, in casual attire and with a beer in hand, Mr Turnbull and Mr Howarth fielded unscripted questions from the audience on a great range of topics. Questions were raised and answered on topics ranging from inspiring innovation and that keeping that innovative talent in Australia and productive in the digital age, to issues of equality, GST exemptions and even nuclear submarines.

It was an entirely civil occasion, hard questions were asked and straightforward answers were given to the room, often with humour.

Perhaps Prime Minister Malcolm Turnbull summed it up best when he said "I'm not here to give a rip-roaring partisan speech, I'll just give you the truth."

It was an enlightening approach to politics that found everyone in the room in an open and casual mood, with real communication between the punters and the polities. If you get a chance to attend any pub politics sessions, we encourage it.

LOCAL LARRIKIN MAKES MESSENGER COVER

Or:

Laurie Stibbe recognised for tireless creativity and community contribution at Australia Day Awards, 2018

For this edition, we had the option to put either the Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Turnbull or Laurie Stibbe on the cover. We chose Laurie.

When the PM visits (see page 6 and page 22) it's pretty big news but like many others in the community, we think Laurie being recognised for his tireless creativity is big news too.

Our resident crossword creator, octogenarian Laurie Stibbe, was honoured on Australia Day by Peter Dutton MP for his creative talent, having recently hit a major milestone and a creative game-changer right here in the Messenger pages.

Late in 2017, we published Laurie's 500th Messenger crossword. We publish 47 magazines a year, so, that puts Laurie's monotone ink-slinging for the Messenger at well over a decade. In fact, Laurie has been supplying us with crosswords and funny emails longer than any of our current (long serving) staff have been working here.

Not content with just being a prolific word wrangler, Laurie is also inventive. The week after his 500th blacky and whitey (as Laurie sometimes calls them), we celebrated by publishing his breakthrough invention, the Quadword (Messenger, December 23, 2017). Smarty-pants has Laurie invented an intriguing, colour coded crossword that's played three dimensionally, although as the medium dictates, is flat. This ingenious approach to crosswords is the first of its kind anywhere, ever.

These achievements weren't lost on Federal Member for Dickson, The Honourable Peter Dutton MP (also on our cover) who bestowed Laurie with the Dickson Community Service Award at the Samford Community Centre last Friday. The awards recognise local heroes and community groups for their service within our community and are presented on Australia Day each year.

"Dedicated family man and community minded contributor, this man is one of the great creative talents of our local area," is how Mr Dutton introduced Laurie at the awards.

"In December last year, this awardee had his 500th crossword published in the Messenger. It is an amazing achievement and this worthy awardee has personally created every crossword they've put on paper since 2006. He's done it on a voluntary basis and his contribution to our local area, I think, is truly unique," Mr Dutton said before the uproarious applause rendered the rest of our recording inaudible, such was the cheer for Laurie.

our local area*

Lifelong local Laurie was born in 1928 at Caboolture, travelled all over the country living a life most of us can only romanticise, before returning to settle in Kallangur where he's remained for the past 45 years.

Laurie's primary education lasted only until end of fifth grade because of World War 2. In the late 1930s his family moved to Moura (country Queensland) to grow cotton for the war effort.

After returning to Brisbane in 1943 he and his family lived temporarily at Cribb Island, from where he rode a pushbike every day to Fortitude Valley Post Office. It was his first job and he earned one pound, five shillings a week as a Telegram Boy.

From there he went on to do many interesting things including farm work, then as a stockman on cattle stations. He drove tractors for the Queensland British Food Corporation and Blair Athol Open-cut coal mine. He even did a stint as a drover's cook.

Now he's retired and spends time with his lovely wife Desley, his kids, grandkids, and of course in front of computer screen making crosswords and cursing at Microsoft products.

He supplies his crosswords to us in a digital format, ready to be converted for press. It's a task that requires a better than average command of technology and wordsmithery. In fact, unlike many of his generation (and younger) Laurie is a certified tech geek.

He attributes his interest in all things tech to tinkering with old-timey valves in a console radio back in the 1930s and later in the forties, helping to piece together the equipment for Kentville's first radio station - Radio 4KV. Many of his occupations traversed a landscape of ever changing technology.

He even once held the record for the largest PCB ever built in Queensland with a hefty 4ft by 3ft board for a bingo computer at the Bramble Bay Bowls Club.

When the internet came along he got more involved than most.

"I made my own modem back in 1982 - I was able to send data at 300 bytes per second, that's 3,000,000,000 times slower than the NBN I'm using now," he earlier told the Messenger.

Our interactions with Laurie are always enjoyable, he's charismatic in a very Aussie way with a sharp sense of humour and a penchant for poking fun at the world as he sees it. We here at the Messenger are very glad to know this great Australian, and are proud to publish his creations. We know he's deserving of such an accolade.

You can find Laurie's Crosswords in the back of the magazine (near the TV guides) every week. We keep a year's worth of back issues on our website at a time, so you can always catch up with Laurie's work online.

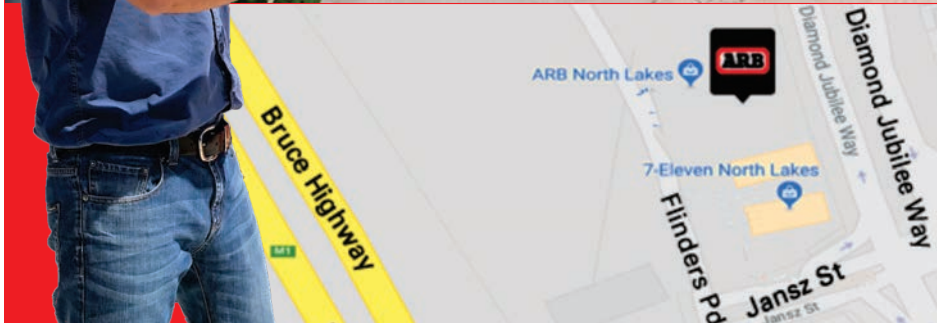

Congratulations Laurie.

YOUR STARS

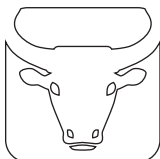

Aquarius Jan 21- Feb 19: Don't let the bean counters poke holes in your financial plans. Remember that it's your vision that brings in the money; not their math.

Pisces Feb 20-March 20: You feel so psychic now that you feel like you can see into people's souls as if you were a glass bottom boat. It's fine within reason, but leaves something to the imagination.

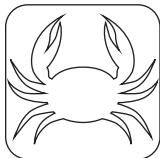

Aries March 21-April 20: You don't see a personal short coming as a detriment. If anything it signifies your unique take on things. Insist that you be accepted warts and all.

Taurus Aril 21-may 21: Your schedule is demanding, but that doesn't mean that you have to be too. A pep talk or show of gratitude revives friends waning enthusiasms.

Gemini May 22-June 21: You're like a bee buzzing from flower to flower. Snippets of conversations gathered from here and there pollinate your creative process.

Cancer June 22-July 23: You're a greater help than you know. Time with you brings solace to troubled souls.

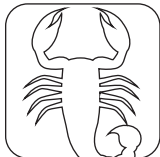

Leo July 24-Aug 23: Share an idea or whim lout loud this week. Someone in earshot may know exactly what to do to make it a reality.

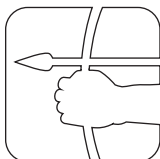

Virgo Aug 24-Sept 23: If you've been down this same road before then you need to ask why. Don't get philosophical about it. This is less about life lessons and more about learning to read a map.

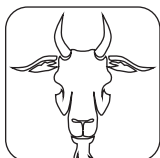

Libra Sept 24-Oct 23: You have no problem giving up a claim if it means peace. But what does your partner say? Ask before making a pledge that you can't keep.

Scorpio Oct 24-Nov 22: friends feel like you are giving in, but you're ready for some peace of mind. Pay the price because it's worth it in the end.

Sagittarius Nov 23-Dec 21: Don't bemoan the loss of greener pastures, there's plenty to work with right where you are. Staying put prompts you to work on what you already have.

Capricorn Dec 22-Jan 20: Don't let insecurities get the better of you. You want to be looking ahead when you cross a major threshold, not looking back over your shoulder.

Found Termites?

- ✓ Stop ✓ Call ✓ Book ✓ Install

- 1 STOP! - do not spray the area with fly spray or any other product. Cover the area back up and leave for a professional Sandgate Pest Control technician to assess (if you disturb this area they have the potential to flee to other areas of your home and this can make treating and identifying them hard)
- 2 CALL US as soon as possible. Our licenced technician will attend your property and give you free advice and a quotation for our services.
- 3 BOOK a Termite Inspection (and eradication treatment if required). This allows for all accessible timbers in the house to be inspected including fences and any outbuildings. Australian Standards state that all homes should have a full Timber Test Inspection at least annually.
- 4 INSTOLL a protective chemical barrier. Once the active termites have been eradicated installing a chemical perimeter barrier will help ensure that they do not enter your home in the future. Sandgate Pest Control offers a 5 - 10 year warranty on their barrier treatments.
- 5 Even though our barriers are very effective we still strongly recommend that you continue with your annual inspections. This allows us to continue your warranty, keep an eye on your home, and identify if any changes at your home may have broken or breached the barrier.

Every year, many buildings in Australia are damaged by subterranean termites, or other timber pests. It is in the home owner's best interest to protect their home from these destructive pests.

Remember once the barrier has been installed, Sandgate Pest Control highly recommends that home owners continue with a Timber and Pest Inspection at least once a year.

Continuing with annual termite inspections after the barrier has been installed allows for the technician to check that the barrier has not been bridged or breached.

CALLING ALL QUEENSLANDERS - CAMERON SMITH & JOHNATHAN THURSTON TESTIMONIAL MATCH

Date: February 23

Time: Kick off 7pm

Location: Suncorp Stadium

Players like Cameron Smith and Johnathan Thurston come along once in a lifetime, and when they do, it's reason to gather. On February 23 Australian, Queensland and Melbourne Storm and North Queensland Toyota Cowboys legends, Smith and Thurston will be recognised for their incredible contribution to Rugby League in a special testimonial match to be played ahead of the 2018 season. Smith's Storm will take on Thurston's Cowboys at their beloved Suncorp Stadium next year, the start of Thurston's final year in the NRL. It will be the first time the teams have faced each other since the 2017 NRL Grand Final, which Smith's Storm won 34-6 over a Cowboys side playing its second Grand Final in three years after losing co-captain Thurston to a season-ending shoulder injury in Origin II.

BLACK IS THE NEW WHITE (POWERFUL THEATRE)

Date: 1 to 17 February 2018, 2018

Location: Playhouse at QPAC, South Brisbane

Black is the New White is the powerful stage story with star studded line-up, set to open Queensland Theatre's 2018 on February 1.

It's an astute and questioning social comedy on identity, politics and family that blends Guess Who's Coming to Dinner? with Meet the Fockers. Black is the New White sold out its world premiere season at Sydney Theatre Company in 2017 - a triumph for Queensland Theatre's Associate Artistic Director Paige Rattray, writer Nakkiah Lui and designer Renée Mulder. Now it's coming to Brisbane.

The stellar cast includes Logie-award winning Shari Sebbens (The Sapphires and Redfern Now), Tom Stokes (The Railway Man), Tony Briggs (co-writer of the Helpmann Award winning play The Sapphires), Miranda Tapsell (Love Child and The Sapphires), Luke Carroll (Play School presenter and Redfern Now), Vanessa Downing (former Home & Away star), Melodie Reynolds-Diarra (Redfern Now and Natural Justice), and NIDA graduate Anthony Taufa (The Golden Age - Sydney Theatre Company, An Octoroon - Queensland Theatre).

THE MANGANIYAR SEDUCTION

Date: March 1 & 2, 2018

Location: QPAC Concert Hall

Cost: 99 - $124

One of the most original and mesmerising live performances on earth is headed for Brisbane. The Manganiyar Seduction is a visually and musically stunning masterpiece, where 40 musicians from three generations of Manganiyars perform in a 36-windowed 'jewel box', with the songs slowly building to giddy heights. Celebrating the music of the Manganiyars, a caste of desert musicians from the heart of the Thar Desert in Rajasthan, The Manganiyar Seduction will be performed twice at the Queensland Performing Arts Centre on March 1 and 2, 2018.

The Manganiyars are a caste of Muslim musicians who are predominantly settled in the districts of Jaisalmer, Barmer and Jodhpur, in the heart of the Thar Desert. They traditionally performed for Kings, however over the years their patrons have shifted from Kings to people who could give them a meal.

FIRST HOME BUYERS BENEFITTING FROM STABLE MARKET

Housing finance figures released last week by the Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS) show that first home buyers continue to steadily increase their presence in the housing market, according to the Real Estate Institute of Australia (REIA).

"The proportion of first home buyers, as part of the total owner-occupied housing finance commitments, increased to 18.0 per cent in November 2017, the highest proportion since October 2012", REIA President Malcolm Gunning said.

"The number of loans to first home buyers at 11,091 is the highest since December 2009 when the first home buyers boost, as part of the Government's response to the GFC, ceased.

"By contrast, the value of investment housing commitments decreased by 0.3 per cent in November in trend terms following falls in the previous ten months and is well down from its 2015 peak.

"Overall the figures for November 2017 show, in trend terms that the number of owner-occupied finance commitments increased by 0.1 per cent. If refinancing is excluded, in trend terms, the number of owner-occupied finance commitments was flat following thirteen consecutive months of increases.

"In trend terms increases were recorded in Victoria, the Australian Capital Territory (ACT), South Australia and Queensland with the largest increase of 1.2 per cent in the ACT. Western Australia had the largest decrease of 1.4 per cent.

"In trend terms, the number of established dwelling purchase commitments increased by 0.2 per cent while new dwelling construction decreased by 0.7 per cent and the purchase of new dwellings increased by 0.5 per cent.

"It is pleasing to see the increased presence of first home buyers. The figures show that owner occupiers and first home buyers are responding to more stable conditions and, in the case of first home buyers, state government incentives," concluded Mr Gunning.

"We had Darren Suhle recommended to us by our neighbours and were really happy. He had a great marketing plan which generated lots of interest online, and then good traffic at our open homes, resulting in a sale. The sale was smooth sailing and Darren was positive, and helpful throughout the process."

A word from our clients...

"Everything about this power couple is on point, the knowledge about the property & the area they had on the spot was excellent. Tony & Nadine were able to answer all our questions right then and there. The couple were very honest & not pushy at all like some agents that Myself & My wife have had in the past. Wilkie's organisation & availability was excellent, nothing was a hassle for them. We cannot wait to move into our new home in North Lakes."

A word from our clients...

"Fantastic agent, highly recommend!"

"Alex went above and beyond my expectations of an agent. He was incredibly knowledgeable, communicative and accommodating in dealing with both my ex and I separately. In the end Alex worked hard on our behalf to achieve a higher than expected sale price. On top of being very professional, he is a positive proactive personality who's genuine and lovely to work with. I would recommend him to anyone 100%."
